MONSTER'S MIND: Dennis Rader, who called himself BTK — for his preferred method, "Bind, Torture, Kill" — confessed to 10 Wichita-area murders. Revulsion: Calm account leaves residents numb | Page 4

BTK's Chilling Confession

WICHITA, KAN. | The man accused of being the BTK serial killer pleaded guilty Monday to 10 murders that spread fear across Wichita beginning in the 1970s, recounting with a chilling, almost professorial air how he "trolled" for victims and then shot, stabbed or strangled them.

Dennis Rader, a 60-year-old former code inspector and church president with a wife and children, said he killed to satisfy his sexual fantasies.

In an account utterly devoid of emotion, Rader described how he used a "hit kit" consisting of guns, rope, handcuffs and tape in a briefcase or a bowling bag. He described his killings as "projects" and his victims as "targets." And he said he offered one victim a glass of water to calm her down before putting a bag over her head and strangling her.

An unfailingly courteous Rader helpfully corrected the judge on some matters, clarified others, and at one point launched into an almost scholarly discourse on the mind and habits of a serial killer.

"You can be trolling for months or years," he told the judge. "But once you lock in on a certain person, you become a stalker."

A Mixed Ruling on Religion

Supreme Court draws a fine line on Ten Commandments

WASHINGTON | The Supreme Court on Monday gave government officials a mixed message about Ten Commandments displays on public property: You can put them up, just don't be too religious about it.

In its first rulings on the church-state issue in a quarter-century, a closely divided court said a 6-foot granite monument that proclaims "I AM the LORD thy God" outside the Texas Capitol is allowed partly because it sits in a vast park that "suggests little or nothing of the sacred."

Rehnquist

But in a second 5-4 decision Monday, it struck down framed copies of the Ten Commandments in two Kentucky court-houses, even though it was surrounded by other nonreligious documents, because officials had previously stated their purpose was to promote religion.

The court said the key to whether a display is constitutional hinges on whether there is a religious purpose behind it. But the justices acknowledged that question would often be controversial.

With these and four other opinions, the court concluded its current term. Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, who is being treated for thyroid cancer, did not announce his resignation as some had speculated he might. (AP)

INTERVIEWING

Does This Mean I Don't Get the Job?

What's the best way to catch a thief? Call him back for a job interview. That's what Fremont, Calif., police tried for two job applicants suspected of swiping an office worker's wallet. Timothy Wash, 22, and Andrew Gonzalez, 18, used the victim's credit card to buy clothes, gift cards and coffee, according to officials. Police suggested the firm that reported the theft call the pair back for a second job interview. Gonzalez and Wash showed up at the office Wednesday and found detectives waiting for them. The two confessed and police recovered the missing property at Wash's home, detectives said. (AP)

Lebanon County, Pa., has produced a "scratch and sniff" brochure for potential homebuyers, featuring such aromas as the stench of manure, the Reading Eagle reported. Residents have often complained about the overpowering odor of farming manure, so authorities added the potent smell to the brochure to warn prospective residents about it. "We're just making them aware of what they will encounter," South Annville treasurer Donald Umberger said. Officials expect to have the brochures ready by Thursday. (EXPRESS)

Oaksmobile

Hmm, a bug inside a wood exterior — we dub this the Volkswagen Termite. It took owner Momir Bojic, 50, about a year to fix up his Beetle and cover it with oak. He occasionally drives it from his home in Celinac, Bosnia-Herzegovina, through the streets of nearby Banja Luka. On those occasions, his "wooden car" usually attracts a bit of attention from passersby, such as during this jaunt into town on Thursday. (EXPRESS)

Polk County, Fla., officials are issuing new decks of playing cards they hope will flush out fugitives. Thousands of decks are being printed with wanted criminals' pictures and profiles on the cards, in hopes of getting new information in cold-case homicides, the Orlando Sentinel reported. Some 10,000 decks will be given to inmates — who officials hope will recognize those on the cards — and sold to the public for $1.75 a pack. The cards also state the cash reward for new leads. (AP)

Another Teen Bitten by Shark on Florida Beach

PENSACOLA, FLA. | A teenage boy fishing in waist-deep water Monday was bitten and critically injured in the second shark attack in three days along the Florida Panhandle.

Craig A. Hutto, 16, of Lebanon, Tenn., was taken to Bay Medical Center in Panama City, where his leg was amputated. He was listed in critical condition but was expected to recover, said hospital spokeswoman Christa Hild.

The boy was attacked off Cape San Blas, a popular vacation destination about 80 miles southeast of the Destin area, where 14-year-old Jamie Marie Daigle of Gonzales, La., was killed by a shark on Saturday.

The boy was fishing with two friends when the shark bit him in the right thigh, nearly severing his leg, said Gulf County Sheriff's Capt. Bobby Plair. The teen was pulled ashore, and a doctor who happened to be nearby began treatment before the boy was taken to the hospital.

Gulf County has no lifeguards on any of its beaches, Plair said. Officials closed the county's beaches until late Tuesday morning. (AP)

Ailing Rehnquist ends court session without announcing retirement

WASHINGTON | The mystery surrounding Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist's future took much of the attention Monday as the Supreme Court finished its business with no retirements.

Rehnquist, who is 80 and has cancer, could step down anytime. He chose not to make any comments about his plans while in court, although he appeared weak.

The chief justice, who has a trachea tube, had difficulty as he announced the final ruling of the term, his opinion that upheld a Ten Commandments display in Texas. His breathing was labored, and he kept the explanation short.

New Trial Denied for Ex-Klan Leader

Conviction in '64 civil rights worker killings will stand, judge says

PHILADELPHIA, MISS. | A judge on Monday denied a new trial for one time Ku Klux Klan leader Edgar Ray Killen, convicted last week of manslaughter for the 1964 killings of three civil rights workers.

James McIntyre, one of Killen's attorneys, told Circuit Judge Marcus Gordon that the defense had not expected prosecutors to ask that jurors in the murder trial be given the option of a manslaughter conviction.

"We did not come to court prepared to defend a manslaughter charge, but that of murder," McIntyre said. He argued the manslaughter option was unfair to Killen.

Killen, 80, was dressed in a yellow Neshoba County jail jumpsuit in the brief court hearing.

District Attorney Mark Duncan said other courts have repeatedly ruled that jury instructions allowing the option of a manslaughter conviction are proper in murder cases.

"The law is very clear in Mississippi that manslaughter is a lesser included offense in murder," Duncan said. EMILY WAGSTER PETTUS (AP)

TEST ARREST: An assistant principal at a Long Island high school was arraigned Monday on charges he gave his son the answers to a state exam on world history. Isben Jeudy's son, Jerrell, was caught with answers to 35 questions written on his hand.

City Shocked by BTK Confession

Residents react with disgust at serial killer's emotionless admission

WICHITA, KAN. | Dennis Rader's matter-of-fact admission Monday that he is the BTK killer brought a wave of relief from the community he haunted for so long — and disgust from a riveted public who heard him recount his crimes in grisly detail.

Those who watched 60-year-old Rader walk into the courtroom saw a man who looked eerily normal for the crimes he was about to confess, with his tie and jacket, neatly trimmed goatee and wire-rimmed glasses.

It was Rader's demeanor that struck many here — how he described his killings as "projects" and his victims as "targets," how he "trolled" for victims, how he spoke of his first four victims almost as animals, saying he decided to "put them down."

GRUESOME DETAILS: Steve Relford, son of BTK victim Shirley Vian who was killed in 1977, listens to Dennis Rader's courtroom confession in Wichita, Kan., on Monday.

Richard LaMunyon, a former Wichita police chief who ran the department during most of the BTK killings, said Rader's confession brought back the horror of his crimes. "He just referred to these people like rag dolls, like they didn't exist," he said. (AP)

A KILLER SPEAKS

An excerpt from BTK strangler Dennis Rader's courtroom statement describing the death of Kathryn Bright, who was killed in her home April 4, 1974. Her brother, Kevin, was shot, but survived.

● "I WENT BACK to the other bedroom where Kevin was at, and I tried to re-strangle him at that time, and he jumped up, and we fought. ... I either bit his finger or hit him or something, got away and used the .22 and shot him one more time. And I thought he was down for good that time.

"I WENT BACK to finish the job on Kathryn. And she was fighting. And at that point in time, I'd been fighting her and I just ... I don't know whether I was basically losing control. The strangulation wasn't working on her and I used a knife on her."

Senators Push for Detainee Treatment Rules at Gitmo

Two Democratic senators, just back from Guantanamo Bay, said Monday that Congress should come up with concrete rules for handling detainees at the U.S. prison there. Sens. Plutonium-238 Production To Resume, U.S. Officials Say

The Energy Department is moving to resume production of plutonium-238 as an energy source for spacecraft and some national security activities, because existing supplies will be virtually gone in five years. Plutonium-238 is not used for nuclear weapons, but its steady, virtually infinite release of heat during decay makes the isotope valuable as a heat source to produce electricity in spacecraft and for some satellites that are unable to rely on the sun as an energy source. Wildfire Threatens Town

A fast-burning fire that quadrupled in size in the matter of hours threatened a small southwestern Utah town, while firefighters made progress on a separate wildfire that had blackened almost 70,000 acres. Causing the most concern was a fire burning about 20 miles north of St. George. Officials said the fire grew from 2,000 acres to 8,000 acres in less than 12 hours. (AP)

Hispanics' Political Clout Growing Slowly

WASHINGTON | The rapid increase of the Hispanic population in the United States is not resulting in a comparable growth in political clout, a new study found.

Hispanics accounted for half the growth in the U.S. between 2000 and 2004, but only a tenth of the growth in votes, according to an analysis of Census data by the Pew Hispanic Center. One reason for the gap: A high percentage of Hispanics are either too young to vote or are ineligible because they are not citizens.

About 18 percent of the Hispanic population — citizens and non-citizens — went to the polls in 2004, compared with 51 percent of all whites and 39 percent of all blacks, according to the Pew report. (AP)

Former Nurse Admits To Killing More Patients

Charles Cullen already serving prison term for deaths of 24 people

FLEMINGTON, N.J. | A former nurse who pleaded guilty to killing 24 patients admitted Monday to killing five more people by injecting them with lethal doses of drugs.

The confessions by 45-year-old Charles Cullen brought to 29 the number of victims he admitted killing in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

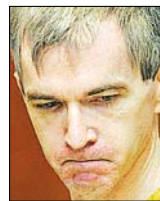

Cullen's lawyer has said Cullen believed that his victims were terminally ill and that it was dehumanizing to prolong people's lives by artificial means.

Cullen said he gave the patients an injection of a heart drug called digoxin, knowing it would kill them.

He gave no reason for his actions. But detective Scott

Lessig, who helped investigate the deaths, said Cullen told authorities he acted out of depression. (AP)

Iraq Copter Crash Kills 2 U.S. Pilots

Later, car bomb rocks busy area of Baghdad, killing at least 4 people

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | A U.S. Apache attack helicopter crashed Monday north of Baghdad, killing both pilots, after a witness said he saw the aircraft hit by a rocket that "destroyed it completely in the air."

Later Monday, a car bomb exploded between a movie house and Sunni Arab mosque in eastern Baghdad, killing at least four people and wounding 16, authorities said. The New Baghdad area is packed with shops and it usually is crowded with shoppers in the hours before curfew.

The AH-64 crashed in Mishahda and witness Mohammed Naji told Associated Press Television News he saw two helicopters flying toward Mishahda when "a rocket hit one of them and destroyed it completely in the air."

Iraqis leave the scene of a car bomb attack in a market area of Baghdad.

The two pilots were killed in the crash, which is under investigation, said Lt. Col. Clifford Kent, spokesman for the 3rd Infantry Division.

Violence in Iraq has killed at least 1,338 people since April 28, when Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari announced his Shiite-dominated government. With the Sunni Arab-dominated insurgency targeting the Shiite majority, the wave of killings has raised fears of a possible civil war. BUSHRA JUHI (AP)

IRAQ'S SECURITY TIMELINE

● IRAQI PRIME MINISTER

Ibrahim al-Jaafari said Monday that two years would be "more than enough" to establish security in his country. Following talks with British Prime Minister Tony Blair in London, al-Jaafari said factors such as building up Iraq's own security forces, controlling the country's porous borders and pushing ahead with the political process would all play a part in ending the violence. "I think two years will be enough, and more than enough, to establish security in our country," he told reporters. (AP)

Israeli Soldier Convicted Of Killing British Activist

CASTINA MILITARY BASE, ISRAEL | A military court convicted a former Israeli soldier of manslaughter Monday in the shooting death of a pro-Palestinian British activist, the first time a soldier has been found guilty of killing a foreign citizen during more than four years of Palestinian-Israeli violence.

Wahid Taysir, a member of the Bedouin Arab minority, was accused of shooting Tom Hurndall in the head during an army operation in the Gaza Strip in April 2003. Witnesses said Hurndall, 22, was helping Palestinian children avoid Israeli tanks.

In its ruling, the three-judge panel noted Taysir shot Hurndall with a sniper rifle using a telescopic sight and said he gave a "confused and even pathetic" version of events.

The court referred to a confession by Taysir, in which he admitted to aiming a bullet four inches to the left of Hurndall's head to frighten him, but inadvertently struck the activist.

Eschewing a culture of shame that often surrounds rape victims here, Mai made her case public, leading to the conviction of six men who were sentenced to death. Eight others were acquitted.

But in March an appeals court overturned the convictions of five of the men, and reduced the death sentence of the sixth to life in prison, citing a lack of evidence.

Mai told reporters she expected the top court to uphold the original verdict in the case. (AP)

Court Acquits 3 Terror Suspects

Kenyan judge frees men accused of link to '02 hotel bombing

NAIROBI, KENYA | Kenya's latest attempt to convict suspects in an al Qaeda-linked hotel bombing that killed 15 people ended with acquittals Monday — raising questions about the readiness of Kenyan prosecutors to handle such cases.

Kenyan prosecutors have failed to convict in three terrorism cases: the November 2002 hotel bombing, the 1998 U.S. Embassy bombing that killed 219 people, including 12 Americans, and an alleged 2003 plot against the rebuilt embassy.

In his ruling, Nairobi Chief Magistrate Aggrey Muchelule said prosecution evidence was not strong enough to connect Kubwa Mohammed Seif, Said Sagar Ahmed and Salmin Mohammed Khamis to either the bombing of the Israeli-owned Paradise Hotel in Kikambala or an attempt to shoot down a chartered Israeli plane at the nearby airport.

The three Kenyan suspects listen to the judgement in court on Monday.

Osama bin Laden's al Qaeda terror network claimed responsibility for both the bombing and the attempt against the plane.

Defense lawyers have said the hotel murder trial was the result of pressure from the U.S., Britain and Israel for Kenya to take action — an allegation Kenyan officials deny. TOM MALITI (AP)

Saintly Merits of Pope John Paul II To Be Reviewed

ROME | The official who will play "devil's advocate" in Pope John Paul II's beatification process, which officially opens Tuesday, promised to be objective as he investigates doubts about the late pontiff's saintliness — but hinted he supports the cause.

In an interview with The Associated Press on Monday, the Rev. Giuseppe D'Alonzo, promoter of justice for the Diocese of Rome, said he was neither for nor against beatification for the late pope, who was considered a saint by many even before his April 2 death.

"It's not for me to decide," D'Alonzo said, sitting at his desk in front of a photo of the late pope on the wall. "I must verify the truth."

The cause officially opens Tuesday, when D'Alonzo and the other clerics involved take an oath to "faithfully and diligently" do their work, keep their proceedings secret and not accept "any type of gift" that might corrupt the process. (AP)

Colombia's main leftist rebel group, the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, known as the FARC, offered on Monday to swap three kidnapped American defense contractors for two guerrilla leaders being held in U.S. jails. The United States immediately ruled out negotiating with the FARC, which the U.S. has blacklisted as a terrorist organization. (AP)

LAHORE, PAKISTAN Ex-Guantanamo Detainees Go Free, Make Abuse Claims

Pakistanis freed from Guantanamo Bay claimed Monday they saw American interrogators throw, tear and stand on copies of Islam's holy book, and one former detainee said naked women sat on prisoners' chests during questioning. The Pentagon denied the accusations. Seventeen Pakistanis were freed Monday from jail, where they had been held since their release from the U.S. prison in Cuba. A Pakistani official said each had been cleared of involvement in terrorism by Pakistani intelligence. (AP)

Higher Price for Delays

On first day of latest VRE fare hike, riders face waits for trains

WASHINGTON | Passengers on Virginia Railway Express are paying the third fare increase in as many years. And for riders on one Fredericksburg Line, there was a second unwelcome development: the train pulled into L'Enfant Station nearly 30 minutes late.

The fare increase that kicked in Monday reflects higher costs for diesel fuel, terrorism insurance and storage fees at Union Station — $1.1 million more than it had budgeted for the 2005 fiscal year, said spokesman Mark Roeber.

Monday morning's delay was due to the company's freight trains clustered on the tracks, Roeber said. For the ride home Monday, CSX — which owns the Fredericksburg Line tracks — imposed heat restrictions, forcing trains to go 20 mph slower than normal. Delays of 10-15 minutes were expected.

3 Charged With Murder Of Veteran of Iraq War

WASHINGTON | Three men face first-degree murder charges for killing an Iraq war veteran and critically injuring another man outside a Northwest nightclub, police said Monday.

The suspects in Sunday's shootings are Davon Williams, 26, Raymond Brown, 24, and Devon Robinson, 29.

At their arraignment Monday in D.C. Superior Court, all three were ordered held without bond pending a preliminary hearing July 14.

Sgt. Antre-Vyn Mason-Black,

24, was found shot dead around 3 a.m. Sunday behind the wheel of a car near Kili's Kafe. A 23-year-old man was found on the sidewalk with a gunshot wound to the neck. He remains in critical condition.

Mason-Black served as a military policeman and had recently returned from duty in Iraq. "To make it through Iraq, and you can't make it through the mean streets of D.C., you know, it's ironic," his mother, Angel Mason-Callaway, told WRC-TV. LAUREN FRAYER (AP)

Lawyer: Beating Suspect Harassed

WASHINGTON | A man allegedly caught on videotape beating and robbing an 83-year-old sidewalk vendor has become the victim of harassment in the D.C. Jail, his public defender said Monday.

James A. Dorsey, 46, has been held since his arrest May 7. Defense lawyer Larry Kupers filed a request Monday for Dorsey's transfer to the Correctional Treatment Facility, or CTF, saying his client is being harassed and needs treatment for a drug problem.

It was unclear when the judge will rule on that request.

Dorsey is accused of punching and kicking to the ground an elderly woman known as "Grandma," in a brazen daylight robbery on May 3 near George Washington University. (AP)

Warner Injured In Bike Accident

Va. governor breaks 2 bones in hand while grabbing water on ride

RICHMOND, VA. | Gov. Mark R. Warner suffered two broken bones in his right hand Monday when a bicycle he was riding overturned during a promotional ride near Lexington.

Warner, 50, underwent two hours of treatment and examinations at Stonewall Jackson Hospital in Lexington for the hand fractures and lesser injuries, said press secretary Kevin Hall.

The governor was among about 2,000 cyclists in rural Rockbridge County for the 18th Annual Bike Virginia Valley Byways Tour.

Warner had finished the 17-mile route from Raphine to Rockbridge Baths and had decided to continue cycling on the warm, sunny day when the accident occurred.

Warner lost control of the bicycle

Gov. Mark Warner talks to the media after leaving the hospital on Monday.

as he used one hand to lift a bottle of water to his mouth for a drink, Hall said.

The governor was wearing a helmet and was conscious and talking throughout his treatment and examination.

None of the injuries are life-threatening, Hall said.

Court OKs Piracy Lawsuits

Software developers can be sued for urging file sharing on Net

WASHINGTON | Hollywood and the music industry can file piracy lawsuits against technology companies caught encouraging customers to steal music and movies over the Internet, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The justices, aiming to curtail what they called a "staggering" volume of piracy online, largely set aside concerns that new lawsuits would inhibit technology companies from developing the next iPod or other high-tech gadgets or services.

The unanimous ruling is expected to have little immediate impact on consumers, though critics said it could lead companies to include digital locks to protect content.

Musicians sang out on file sharing when the high court heard arguments in March.

The court said Grokster Ltd. and Streamcast Networks Inc., developers of leading Internet file-sharing software, can be sued because they deliberately encouraged customers to download copyrighted files illegally so they could build a larger audience and sell more advertising. Writing for the court, Justice David H. Souter said the companies' "unlawful objective is unmistakable." TED BRIDIS (AP)

Oil Prices Climb Past $60 Per Barrel

VIENNA, AUSTRIA | Oil prices settled at a record high above $60 a barrel on Monday, reflecting traders' concerns about strong demand and potential supply bottlenecks.

Oil broker Tom Bentz at BNP Paribas Commodity Futures in New York said Monday's rally was just a continuation of the larger uptrend that began in late May.

Bentz said there is also a speculative component to the surge in oil prices, though he also believes that the world's limited excess production and refining capacity have played important roles in keeping traders on edge about potential supply disruptions.

After climbing as high as $60.95 per barrel, an intraday record, the front-month August contract for crude rose 70 cents to close at $60.54 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. It was the highest settlement on record at Nymex, where crude futures began trading in 1983. The previous settlement high was $59.84 a barrel, set Friday. (AP)

Success Nothing New to Nationals

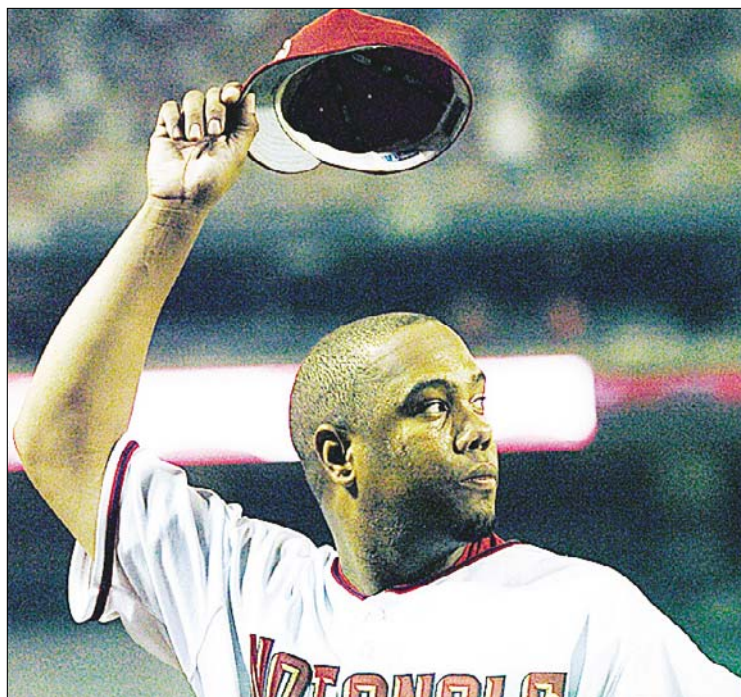

Veterans on NL East leaders seek a return trip to the postseason

NATIONALS | Livan Hernandez disposed of the question about the Washington Nationals' postseason hopes much like his array of pitches silences opposing batters.

"It's too early. It's June," said Hernandez, the Nationals' 11-2 ace. "Nobody talks about winning the World Series in June. Right now, the team is playing good. That's what's important."

Despite sitting atop the Eastern Division at 44-31 — and with a three-game lead over second-place Atlanta — the Nationals are maintaining perspective. Still, Washington players with pennant race experience notice similarities between their pasts and the present.

Hernandez was the MVP of the '97 World Series as a Florida Marlin. Third baseman Vinny Castilla has been part of four playoff clubs. Shortstop Cristian Guzman played on three straight Minnesota 1997 World Series MVP Livan Hernandez is one of several Nationals with playoff experience enjoying the team's success this year. But it's still early, he warns.

Twins playoff squads from 2002-2004. Outfielder Jose Guillen, first baseman Nick Johnson, second baseman Junior Spivey, utility man Wil Cordero and right-hander Esteban Loaiza also boast postseason experience.

"When we go out on the field, we're confident. We've got guys who have done it before, who have been in those situations. Hopefully, if we're in it later in the schedule, we won't panic," said Johnson, a Yankee in the 2003 World Series.

Perhaps no one is more familiar with quick turnarounds than manager Frank Robinson

In 1989, Robinson skippered a Baltimore Orioles club that had gone 54-107 — including an 0-21 start — the previous season. Robinson engineered a 32 1/2-game improvement and kept the Orioles in the pennant race until the final weekend of the campaign.

"[Washington] is a completely different club than I've ever managed before, on and off the field," Robinson said. "There's just a different mixture here, a different attitude, a different approach here. It's been more successful from the start of the season until now than any club I've ever managed." (AP)

V. Williams Is Sharp in Easy Win

TENNIS | The second Monday at Wimbledon offers the rare treat of all 16 men's and women's fourth-round matches, and on this particular afternoon there was the even rarer sight of Venus Williams playing mistake-free tennis.

Less than 48 hours after sitting with chin on hand while watching her sister Serena lose to Jill Craybas, Williams strode onto the same court against the same opponent, more concerned with righting her own game than restoring family pride.

She managed to do both. Williams won the first six games and the last six to overwhelm Craybas 6-0, 6-2, looking a lot more like the player who won Wimbledon and the U.S. Open in 2000 and 2001 than one who hasn't reached a Grand

Asked whether facing someone who just beat Serena particularly pumps her up, Williams looked down and laughed. "I definitely would like to do it a little bit for my sister," she said, then paused before adding: "but mostly for me."

O's Manager Remains Confident Despite Skid

ORIOLES | Back home after a disappointing road trip, Baltimore Orioles manager Lee Mazzilli expressed confidence that his team would bounce back during a homestand that began Monday night against the New York Yankees.

The Orioles limped into town with a five-game losing streak that dropped them out of first place in the AL East. After going 5-1 during a six-game stretch at home from June 13-19, Baltimore lost three of four in Toronto before dropping three in a row in Atlanta.

Meanwhile, the defending World Series champion Boston Red Sox peeled off seven straight wins to assume the division lead.

"We only have control over what we're going to do," Mazzilli said. "We've got to come back and play like we did the last homestand."

RETURN TRIP: Danny Ferry, who played 10 seasons with the Cavaliers, is returning to Cleveland, where he was named the team's new GM on Monday afternoon.

Bogut's Tall Tale

Aussie center expects to be top pick in draft, prove doubters wrong

NBA | Andrew Bogut, the Australian center by way of Croatia expected to be selected first in the NBA draft, has made two things crystal clear: He wouldn't mind playing for Milwaukee, and he doesn't want to be compared to Luc Longley.

The Milwaukee Bucks have the first pick, and it would be a major surprise if they did not select the 7-footer on Tuesday night.

"I know there's a lot of beer and cheese there, and that suits me," Bogut said.

Bogut, who described himself "proud" to be half-Croatian, half-Australian, said he wasn't a fan of any Australian players when he was growing up playing basketball, rugby, soccer and tennis.

So when the inevitable comparisons to Longley, considered a marginal NBA center, were thrown at him Bogut was quickly dismissive.

"I've had a better collegiate career than anyone else from Australia that came over here," Bogut said. "I'm not as slow as Luc Longley, I'm more athletic, I can shoot better, I'm more competitive. So I think it's not even fair to bring that name up." CHRIS SHERIDAN (AP)

Grunfeld Eyes Steal In the Draft

Wizards deal without a first-round choice for first time since 2000

WIZARDS | Coming off their best season in more than two decades, the Washington Wizards are without a first-round draft choice for the first time since 2000, but that doesn't mean they aren't hoping for a steal.

The Wizards have the 49th pick in Tuesday's NBA draft, and Washington's president of basketball operations, Ernie Grunfeld, said the team is focusing on a player with potential.

Grunfeld

"We're looking for a player with some upside. We know we're not going to get a proven product."

Washington traded its first-round pick for this year to Orlando in 2001 along with Laron Profit for the rights to Brendan Haywood.

Grunfeld has had some success with late-round picks.

As general manager of the Milwaukee Bucks in 2000, he selected Michael Redd with the 43rd pick.

Redd averaged 23 points per game last season with the Bucks, and made the All-Star Game in the 2003-2004 season. (AP)

Ex-Terp Wilcox Arrested With Gun

COLUMBIA, MD. | Los Angeles Clippers power forward and former University of Maryland standout Chris Wilcox was arrested early Monday after police found a gun in his car during a traffic stop.

Wilcox, 22, was pulled over about

1 a.m. after a Howard County police officer saw his silver BMW weaving on U.S. 29 in Columbia.

A canine team in the area responded to assist and an officer asked Wilcox if there was anything inside the vehicle that would cause the dog to react. Wilcox said there was a gun inside, police said.

The officer found a .357-caliber revolver in a pocket behind the front passenger seat. The officer checked the weapon and found a spent casing inside. Live ammunition and two spent shell casings were also found inside the car. (AP)

A new type of clinic offers fast service for simple ailments

MEDICINE | When Ann Theisen's 6-year-old daughter, Hannah, had a sore throat, she didn't take the little girl to the family doctor.

Instead, she went to the Cub Foods store down the street from her Minneapolis house, lured by the prospect of faster treatment at a MinuteClinic tucked into a corner of the supermarket. Within about 15 minutes, they had the results of a rapid strep test: negative.

MinuteClinic, based in Minneapolis, is on the leading edge of a new kind of clinic that offers swift treatment for simple illnesses.

MinuteClinic operates in 22 locations in the Twin Cities and Baltimore, most of them in Target, Cub Foods and CVS Pharmacy stores. The company has plans to open more than 80 clinics in 12 major metropolitan areas east of the Rockies by year's end.

At the quick-service clinics, nurse practitioners diagnose and treat strep throat, pink eye, bronchitis and other common ailments. CEO Michael Howe and other MinuteClinic executives say their business is to health care what ATMs are to banks — making ordinary transactions easier while freeing up traditional providers for more complicated cases.

ABC's 'Empire' hopes to bring back the epic period mini-series

DEBUT | Movie theaters are dominated by blockbusters at this time of year, the executive producer of ABC's "Empire," Tony Jonas, figures, so maybe the same approach will work on the small screen.

"While the rest of television is doing reality shows, you're going to have this gigantic, sumptuous epic that, hopefully, comes into the American consciousness as feature films have been doing for so long," Jonas said.

Billed as a six-hour limited series, "Empire" begins with the assassination of Julius Caesar and follows a dramatized version of the ascension of his nephew and heir, the teenage Octavius. The series debuts with a two-hour episode tonight at 9 p.m.

A solid ensemble of mostly British actors is at ease in togas and carrying the weight of epic storytelling.

as Caesar; Santiago Cabrera as Octavius; Vincent Regan as Marc Antony and Emily Blunt as Camane. Jonathan Cake plays the pivotal (fictional) character of Tyrannus, a gladiator who becomes Octavius' protector and mentor.

"Empire" is beating a competitor to the screen. HBO is bringing the 12-part drama series "Rome," set in 52 B.C., on in the fall.

"Rome" is being positioned as a potential continuing series. Jonas would like to see the same for "Empire" if viewers give it an arena-style thumbs-up.

Potter-mania is high as merchants scale back on accessories

MARKETING | As publication nears for "Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince," to be unveiled to the world July 16, expect some of the usual midnight madness and at least one new twist: less Potter merchandise.

"We've got Harry Potter pens and bookmarks, and a few of those types of things. But that's really it," said Beth Bingham, a spokeswoman for the superstore chain Borders Group, Inc.

"I told the staff not to sell any of it," said Gayle Shanks, owner of the Changing Hands Bookstore in Tempe, Ariz. "We failed with it last time. It was really pricey merchandise for pretty bad stuff, to be honest."

Potter paraphernalia from cakes to capes was on display everywhere when J.K. Rowling's last novel, "Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix," came out in 2003. But the release of "Half-Blood Prince" should confirm that Harry Potter mania is essentially a celebration of reading, a phenomenon created by children, not marketers.

Demand for the book is higher than ever. Scholastic, Inc., Rowling's American publisher, has announced a first printing of 10.8 million.

The release of "Half-Blood Prince" renews a kind of summer tradition, as retailers again deck out their stores and fans of all ages prepare for a late and long evening. HILLEL ITALIE (AP)

Twice The Jazz Artistry

MUSIC | When Harry met Branford during their teenage years in New Orleans in the 1970s, Connick had the reputation of being a jazz piano prodigy. Over the years, Connick's success as a pop singer and actor came to overshadow his jazz roots, but now thanks to a special deal worked out with Sony/Columbia, Marsalis' new record label puts out a "Connick on Piano" series of instrumental jazz (non-singing) releases.

"Occasion," Marsalis Music's new CD of saxophone-piano duets, marks the first occasion the two friends have had to record an entire album together. This is jazz without the safety net of familiar mainstream standards to fall back on, informal and spontaneous rather than carefully arranged. In this intimate and sparse setting, Connick and Marsalis engage in inventive and playful interaction, constantly pushing and challenging each other as they shift between lead and supporting roles.

Connick demonstrates an almost encyclopedic knowledge of jazz piano styles, from stride and ragtime to the avant-garde, though his central focus is hard bop and his main influences include Thelonious Monk and Erroll Garner. He also reveals his talents as a jazz composer, with highlights including "Spot," a throwback to his New Orleans roots; two poignant ballads, "I Like Love More" and "All Things," from his Tony-nominated score to the Broadway musical "Thou Shalt Not," and the hard-driving and soulful "Good to Be Home" that closes the session.

Marsalis shows a gentler side with his soprano sax playing, particularly on "Steve Lacy," an ethereal ballad dedicated to the jazzman who died last year and who is credited with helping bring the soprano sax into the modern era.

But what's most striking about this CD is that these two friends obviously enjoy playing together, and their infectious enthusiasm is clearly conveyed to the listener. CHARLES J. GANS (AP)

Gay cable channel Logo TV debuts with shows, not agendas

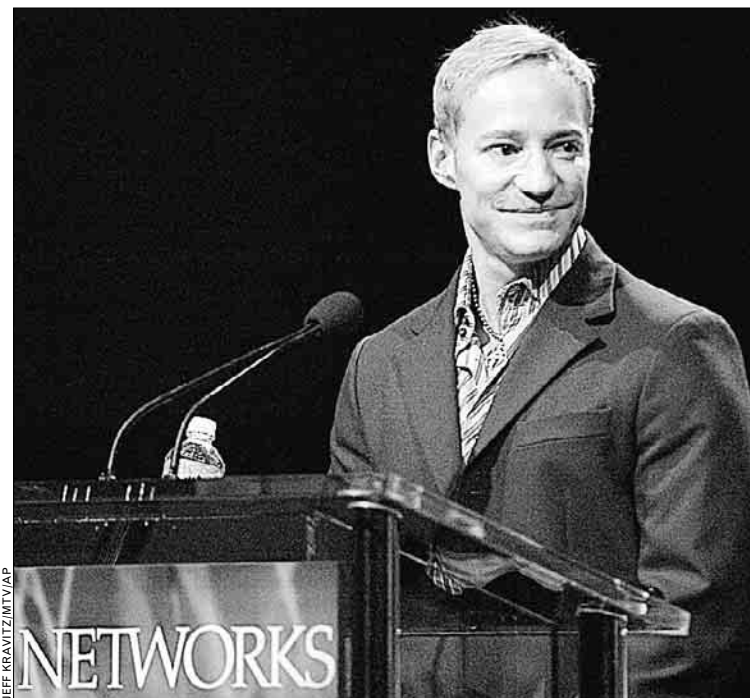

INNOVATION | The man who's molding Logo, the new network for gays and lesbians, grew up in rural Illinois, attended Oral Roberts University and counted that cheesy keyboard solo on "Freeze Frame" as his big moment during gigs with his college band the Ozones.

Brian Graden is one of television's busiest and most imaginative executives, already responsible for the programming on MTV, VH1 and CMT — and now Logo, which debuts Thursday.

Long in the works, Logo will initially be seen in about 10 million homes with digital cable. Unlike Here and Q, two pay-per-view, gay-oriented networks already operating, Logo will be available in homes that do not specifically order it.

Films such as "Kissing Jessica Stein" and "Philadelphia" and documentaries will fill many of Logo's first hours. The network also has a scripted series, "Noah's Arc," about a homosexual black man and his friends in Los Angeles, a reality series about opening a gay bar and the stand-up comedy series "Wisecrack."

The launchpad for his career came when he befriended writers Trey Parker and Matt Stone, helping them to develop "South Park."

He moved to MTV in 1997, and was the executive behind a dizzying array of hits, including "The Osbournes," "Pimp My Ride," "Jackass," and "The Newlyweds." Graden has managed not only to stay on top of MTV's here-today, gone-tomorrow ethos but expand his authority to where he's put between 200 and 300 programs on the air.

Graden said his job is to serve the target gay and lesbian audience and not worry about cultural critics who may look over his shoulder.

"That said, we've also said from early on that the standards for Logo will be that of a general entertainment network," he said. "The assumption that I would have to push certain standards to tell my story instead of yours I don't get, because they're all human stories."

The high-pitched wail of the notes he coaxes out of the instrument, nicknamed Lucille, is salve to the soul of the nearly 80-year-old bluesman, who shows no signs of slowing down as he prepares to kick off a world tour.

It's been a good year for King, named by Rolling Stone magazine as the third-greatest guitarist of all

Yet King, acclaimed around the world, still laments what he believes is a lack of respect for blues music in America.

Tired of Smoking Cigarettes?

Have you tried to quit on your own, but had trouble succeeding? How about getting some help with quitting by using new low and nicotine-free cigarettes as a step to becoming smoke free. The Lombardi Comprehensive Cancer Center at Georgetown University is seeking participants for a research study that examines this novel approach to quitting smoking. Participants will be assigned to a cigarette group or to a nicotine lozenge group. The lozenge group will be asked to quit smoking during the next 12 weeks. Participants in the cigarette group will smoke the new cigarettes for 6 weeks. They will be asked not to smoke any other brand of cigarette during this time, and then they will be asked to quit smoking for the next 6 weeks. We will provide participants with free cigarettes and lozenges. The study will also look at the health effects of these products. You may be eligible to participate in this study if you are 18-70 years old, motivated to quit smoking, in good physical and mental health, willing to commit to 12 clinic visits over a 14 week period, willing to fast overnight on some visits, and have your blood drawn. The clinic is located in Washington, D.C., on Wisconsin Avenue, in the Glover Park neighborhood. Parking is available and there is easy Metro Bus access.

If you are interested in more information, please call the research team at 202-687-8345, or email them at tobacco@georgetown.edu

Hard-Nosed Help

'The New Heroes' are tough people with soft-hearted goals

DOCUMENTARY| Robert Redford calls them “a rare combination of saint, politician and hard-nosed businessperson.”

Redford hosts "The New Heroes," a four-hour, two-night series debut tonight at 8 and 10 p.m. on PBS, about people who are applying business skills to solving social ills (and sometimes placing themselves in life-and-death situations).

In the first episode, the series heads to India to follow Kailash

SURVIVORS: Moses Zulu with some of the AIDS orphans he works to save.

Satyarthi on a harrowing slave-camp raid.

A world away in San Francisco, Mimi Silbert runs Delancey Street Foundation, whose various businesses have given substance abusers, former felons and others in trouble a chance to turn their lives around. More than 14,000 have been helped since 1971, and it grosses $20 million annually.

"The New Heroes" tells these stories and those of a dozen other "social entrepreneurs" who are alleviating poverty and illness, combating unemployment and violence, and bringing education, opportunity and freedom to poor and marginalized people around the world.

These people, Redford sums up, "are offering hope instead of despair." FRAZIER MOORE (AP)

D.C.'s Magazine Club deconstructs the glam and the glossy

Club members filtered in for their June meeting, clutching their assigned reading. Some had finished their assignment; others were trying to catch up. As the couches filled, Stacey Krejci couldn't wait for things to get off to a formal start.

"So, what did you guys think of Angelina Jolie?" she demanded. The others opened their Vanity Fairs, and Magazine Club began.

Book clubs are a fine way to maintain one's intellectual street cred. The problem is, members need time to actually read the book. And discussing high-brow literature isn't necessarily a fun way to relax with friends. Magazine Club neatly dispensed with these issues by tossing the text and going for the gloss.

Founded by Son Tran, a 31-year-old software designer, in March, Magazine Club meets on the first Thursday evening of each month at Domku, an Eastern European restaurant in D.C.'s Petworth neighborhood. The 10 or so members, in their 20s and 30s, exhaustively deconstruct the assigned literature, which so far has trended toward celebrity rags such as US Weekly and In Touch.

"The only rules are, no porno and no obscure academic journals," said Tran, who started the club both to build on and lend purpose to his friends' informal gatherings at Domku. "It was like, let's have a reason, not just a happy hour," he said.

Vanity Fair cover girl Jolie initially dominated June's meeting. "She's a Beverly Hills slut," declared Tania Haddad. From there, Jolie was slandered, praised, insulted, defended; every aspect of her life was referenced, from motherhood ("Maddox is really cute," Haddad allowed) to her local connections.

"I got to know Angelina more as a person," Krejci said to both nods and grimaces. "But I want to know more about these rumors involving Brad Pitt and how he wants a family and how that affects his relationships." Thus was set off a furious assessment of Brad Pitt.

Brangelina? Discuss.

Other victims followed: Billy Bob Thornton. Mary Kate and Ashley Olson, Ashton Kutcher. Members threw out slumber party-style hypotheticals: Who makes the most attractive couples? Who would be dating in a perfect world?

Whatever the topic, the time commitment is appealing. "It took me two hours and I went cover to cover," Tran said of the US Weekly discussed in May. The cost is also a draw — US runs about $1.99.

The group zealously, and relatively un-ironically, embraces the triviality of their subject matter. Tran has marked stories he wants to discuss with Post-It notes as if preparing a lesson plan. The members seek meaning in attire, headlines, even perfume samples: "What really amazes me is that both perfume samples are men's perfumes," Mike Larsen said of his US Weekly.

As the sun began to set on June's meeting, conversation drifted to member's personal lives, then snapped back to magazines when a pressing issue demanded commentary. "Sure it's pointless, pretty much," said Denise Patterson. "But it's a good way to get to know people." CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

Grating Expectations

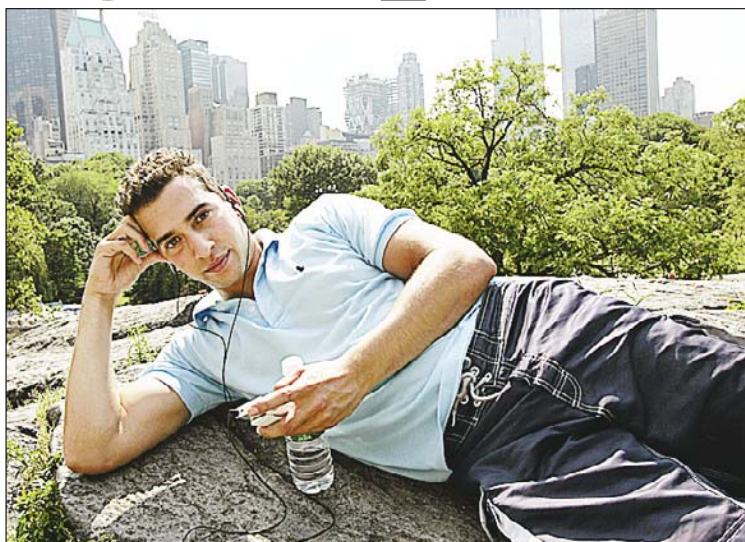

Working World

Employers struggle to understand young, 'entitled' workers

Evan Wayne thought he was prepared for anything during a recent interview for a job in radio sales.

Then the interviewer hit the 24-year-old Chicagoan with this: "So, we call you guys the 'Entitlement Generation,'" the baby boomer executive said, expressing an oft-heard view of today's young work force. "You think you're entitled to everything."

Such labeling is a rite of passage for every crop of twentysomethings. In their day, baby boomers were rabble-rousing hippies, while Gen Xers were apathetic slackers. Now, deserved or not, this latest generation is being pegged, too — as one with shockingly high expectations for salary and job flexibility but little willingness to take on grunt work or remain loyal to a company.

"We're seeing an epidemic of people who are having a hard time making the transition to work — kids who had too much success early in life and who've become accustomed to instant gratification," said Dr. Mel Levine, author of "Ready or Not, Here Life Comes."

While Levine also notes that today's twentysomethings are long on idealism and altruism, "many of the individuals we see are heavily committed to something we call 'fun.'"

He partly faults coddling parents and colleges for doing little to prepare students for the realities of adulthood and setting the course for what many disillusioned twentysomethings are increasingly calling their "quarter-life crisis."

Meanwhile, employers from corporate executives to restaurateurs and retailers are frustrated. "It seems they want and expect everything that the 20- or 30-year veteran has the first week they're there," says Mike Amos, a Salt Lake City-based franchise consultant for Perkins Restaurants.

Some experts who study young people think having some expectations, and setting limits with bosses, isn't necessarily negative.

"It's true they're not eager to bury themselves in a cubicle and take orders from bosses for the next 40 years, and why should they?" said Jeffrey Arnett, a University of Maryland psychologist who's written a book on "emerging adulthood," the period between age 18 and 25. "They have a healthy skepticism of the commitment their employers have to them and the commitment they owe to their employers."

As much as some employers would like to resist the trend, a growing number are searching for ways to retain twentysomething employees — and to figure out what makes them tick.

"The manager who says I don't have time for that is going to be stuck on the endless turnover treadmill," says Eric Chester, a Colorado-based consultant who works with corporations to understand what he calls "kidploys," ages 16 to 24.

Wayne had this response for his interviewer at the radio station: "Maybe we WERE spoiled by your generation. But I think the word 'entitled' isn't necessarily the word," he said. "Do we think we're deserving if we're going to go out there and bust our ass for you? Yes."

He ended up getting the job — and, as he starts this month, is vowing to work hard. MARTHA IRVINE (AP)

STYLES

Look outSHOWER CURTAINS

It's tough to find bathroom-appropriate art. Not only is space limited, but a room that spends a lot of its time wet perhaps isn't the best place for something delicate. You can still custom-decorate your bathroom, though, with Gallery Street's shower curtains. Their pattern options range from classic cars to cute angels, all of which can be made into shower curtains, as well as pillows, placemats and tablecloths. You're limited to their design options, however (no pictures of your puppy). The curtains are $135—more than you'd pay at Bed, Bath and Beyond, but imagine all the compliments you'll get at parties. GALLERYSTREET.COM.

LIGHTING

Alluminaire's hanging lights, sconces, table and floor lamps are fully customizable (on some models, you can even choose the cord color). Most pieces start around $150 and feature a vast array of shade options. The site isn't as fancy as some (you can't preview your purchase) but it proves that there's light at the end of the decorating tunnel. ALLUMINAIRE.COM.

GLASSWARE

Pfaltzgraff's new design-it-yourself dinnerware is like paint-your-own pottery for the artistically inept. The pieces, which start at $10 and climb to around $50, include mugs, plates and serving dishes; you can add patterns, clip art-like drawings, even words and monograms. The oddly addictive site has a wide choice of colors and designs and even has a bridal registry, so you can make all of your friends buy your monogrammed, polka-dot plate. Warning: As with any of these sites, there's no safety net. The design options aren't guaranteed to work together, and you could end up with something only a mother could love. PFZ.COM

WALLS

Paint is for amateurs. Wonderful Graffiti's removable adhesive letters let you quote Shakespeare in the living room, Sartre in the study, or Grandma in the den. An advanced option lets you tag your room in a dozen typefaces and even more colors, starting at $25 A FOOT. WONDERFULGRAFFITI.COM.

FURNITURE

If you've been dreaming of a recliner in 13 shades of pink and purple, this is your big chance. At Norwalk Furniture, you don't merely choose your chair or sofa's upholstery. No, you can specify wood, trim, pillows and every scrap of cloth that touches the frame. Colors and patterns range from traditional to the colossally ugly; your taste, however idiosyncratic, is the limit. Though you can design your item online, you do have to leave the house—print out your design and take it to one of three area stores (addresses are on the Norwalk site). Prices vary by the fanciness of your design, but you're probably looking at around $800 for a chair and $1,800 for a couch. NORWALKFURNITURE.COM.

A Darker Shade of Pale

Some people are pale. Others are five freckles short of albino. Even the mildest self-tanners leave the latter the color of radioactive apricots. That's why BENEFIT'S JIFFY TAN ($24, Sephora) is the greatest thing to happen to the melanin-challenged since SPF

64. Though the tinted lotion—it's not self-tanner—emerges from the tube an alarming shade of mahogany, it smooths into a wholly convincing shade just dark enough to neutralize the glowing blue-white of pigment-free legs. (If you actually have color, it spares you an extra day in the tanning booth.) The stuff stays on, too, as vigorous rubbing with a white towel proved. Impromptu LAN party? Limp Locks Meet Their Match

With clay from northeastern England and acacia gum from Chad, AVEDA'S PURE ABUNDANCE line of shampoo ($14), conditioner ($14) and hairspray ($15.50, Aveda salons and aveda.com) for fine hair is better traveled than most anything at CVS. Though caring for your hair with products containing what is essentially English dirt may seem counterintuitive, it worked—test hair was more manageable and had increased volume and bounce. Unless eau de Home Depot is a favorite scent, however, the shampoo and conditioner may smell too woody, while the hairspray is sticky, especially when it lands on skin. Those complaints aside, Aveda's potions left fine hair looking, well, fine for a change. JAMIE PAGE

Live Online

Personal Tech

Washington Post personal technology columnist ROB PEGORARO was online Monday to discuss HDTV and plasma TVs | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Comparing TVs is confusing. What does "aspect ratio" mean?

Aspect ratio is simply how wide the screen is. Conventional TVs, and most computer monitors, have a 4:3 ratio — slightly wider than they are tall. HDTVs are 16:9, which is much closer to the wide screen ratio used in movie theaters.

What's your take on the Supreme Court's decision regarding cable companies? Looks like I will continue to be subject to Comcast's whims, inefficiencies and ever increasing prices.

The Brand X ruling means that Comcast can continue to prevent other companies from re-selling its connectivity with their own service and support. Since cable companies did not want to have to do that, I'm sure they count this ruling as a victory. But I suspect it's more complex than that; by forcing customers to buy only their service, they may artificially limit their appeal to customers who, when they find that Comcast won't give them the services they want, then decide to go with a DSL or other broadband provider who will. (If, that is, they have that choice.)

Is it true that plasma TVs have a problem with images burning into the screen? Seems like a fairly significant defect for something this expensive.

"Burn-in" with plasma sets, from everything that I've been able to gather, is a small to nonexistent risk, depending on the quality of the set and to what use it's put. For example, those plasma sets in airports that show the TSA's message of the day and nothing else? I'm positive they've got those graphics burned into the phosphors on their screen. But in normal at-home use, I don't think it's a hazard anymore.

I don't have cable and don't want it. I use rabbit ears and am happy with them since I am not spending money for programs I don't want to see. Can I still buy an HDTV-ready set? Will they work with my rabbit ears or does upgrading require me to buy cable services that I don't want?

HDTV does not require you to subscribe to cable or satellite at all. But if you do want to keep using your rabbit-ears antenna (something our own tests show is perfectly possible with digital broadcasts), you'll need a set with a digital ATSC tuner.

Why No Troops in Sudan?

INTHURSDAY'S Express it was reported that Robert Zoellick claimed that the U.S. is not willing to send troops to Sudan because of the risk of attack by terrorists. If we don't send troops to places where they are vulnerable to terrorist attacks, why do we still have soldiers in Iraq? Or is the problem that there is not the same economic incentive in Sudan that there is in Iraq?

Get Over Yourself, Celebs

I DON'T NORMALLY follow celebrity news, but what happened to Tom Cruise in London was so funny it just has to be fattening. What stuns me in this whole affair, though, is that the comic who sprayed Cruise with water was arrested and only narrowly escaped charges. We celebrate "Punk'd" on TV yet we arrest everyday people who dare to play pranks on celebrities? It's time stars stopped taking themselves so seriously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be most content making efforts to please others. Domestic activities bring you most satisfaction. You may want to redo a room in your home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll very likely gravitate toward those who share your feelings about a highly controversial issue. You should be able to make new friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Now is no time to throw caution to the wind. On the contrary, you'll want to travel a conservative path and avoid unnecessary side-trips.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll be able to see through others when they are departing from the truth and you, too, will be transparent as well. Be straightforward, honest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) What seems accidental may be anything but, when all is said and done. You may find that you've been the target of a complex scheme.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Privacy is important to you, but first settle an ever-mounting conflict with a friend or loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A random approach is not for you. You'll want to have every move planned out with great care, minimizing the chance that an accident will occur.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may have the time, the money and the inclination to be a little extravagant as the day comes to a close. Do something special for that special someone.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) The masculine and the feminine in you will both be readily apparent. You needn't worry about the impression you leave; your performance is the key.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're not likely to be as interested in the performance of your duties as you are in the quiet study of your own motives and methods.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something you've been planning on for some time may seem unpromising now that it is looming directly ahead of you. There is time to change course.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Consider the odds before placing any bet or before setting out on a journey over uncharted terrain.

KEEPING IN TOUCH WITH OUR CUSTOMERS

Metro has special bus and rail service plans to get you where you need to go this Fourth of July. Plan now so you don't get caught in the crush — and be sure to check MetroOpensDoors.com for updates.

Every year, the Fourth of July celebration in the nation's capital attracts upwards of a half-million people to the National Mall. They come from all over the world for the parade on Constitution Avenue, the concerts on the Washington Monument grounds and the U.S. Capitol, and the awesome fireworks display. The Fourth falls on a Monday this year, so Metro anticipates especially large crowds, depending on the weather. What's more, our new home baseball team, the Washington Nationals, host the the New York Mets in an afternoon game at RFK Stadium. Metro is ready for the crowds with special service plans.

On July 4, Metrobus will operate on a Saturday schedule with added service, including free shuttles from Springfield Mall to Franconia-Springfield station beginning at 6 p.m. and from L'Enfant Plaza station to the Pentagon after the fireworks on the Mall. D.C. Circulator will run free shuttle service from RFK Stadium to Union Station beginning at the top of the 8th inning.

Metrail will operate special service all day on the Fourth to speed customers on their way and minimize crowding at popular downtown stations. A special Fourth of July rail system map (see right), also available in stations and in rail cars, shows the special Metrorail service patterns including route changes on the Orange, Blue and Yellow lines.

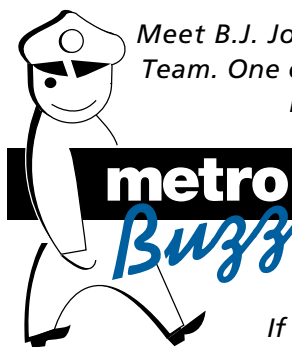

Metro will use some eight-car trains and shorter times between trains on all rail lines to minimize congestion. Parking will be free at all Metro-operated parking lots. Customers can save time by buying round-trip fares when they enter the system. Metro staff at key stations will provide information and other help to customers.

METRO RAIL SERVICE FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY

Metro Travel Tip

If your out-of-town visitors this summer are bringing a recreational vehicle for sightseeing, tell them they can park at the Greenbelt Metrorail station while they tour the area. That parking lot has special parking for oversized vehicles like RVs. Also, remind them that if they're 65 or older, they can travel for half-price (60¢) on Metrobus just by showing a photo ID with their date of birth.

Meet B.J. Jones, the new line manager and captain of the Red Line Team. One of three new line managers assigned to oversee all aspects of rail service, B.J. will soon be joined by line managers for the Orange/Blue and Yellow/Green Lines. Metro has added these three new teams to improve customer service throughout the system by providing "real people" you can turn to for help.

If you have a question or comment about service on the Red Line, you can speak to B.J. in person, contact her team by telephone at 301-562-4605 or by e-mail at redline@wmata.com. Or you can simply visit MetroOpensDoors.com.

Metro will host "Meet & Greet" events July 13 at Glenmont station from 8 to 9 a.m., and July 20 at Silver Spring station from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Come out and meet the new Red Line team, tell us how service is at your station and ask questions about Metro. We want you to feel comfortable sharing your thoughts and ideas on our service, and the new Line Manager will make that even easier.
